Style Week Date Is Reset; Will Open March 18

MORE MODERATE WEATHER MENU WILL AID EVENT

Committees Welcome Opportunity to Further Perfect Plans

AN EVEN GREATER SHOW IS PLANNED

Response to Idea for City-Wide Revue Greater Than Expected

Longing for balmy spring days when blossoms shall not shrink from winter's icy hands, Paris merchants assembled their committee heads Tuesday morning, piled up their overcoats and decided to move up the opening of the Spring Fashion Revue and Window Panorama just one week. The date selected is Friday night, week, March 18.

Seek Balmy Weather

Reading weather forecasts which predicted "rain or snow" for the next day or two, the merchants did not feel that an open-air festival would be the success that would attend the affair if a more moderate weather menu could be selected for the big style party. The six divisions, serving under General Chairman Henry P. Mayer, and H. C. Coker, Chairman of the Retailers Division of the Chamber of Commerce, agreed unanimously that it would be wise to move the date up one week.

Much To Be Done

Although the committees had worked faithfully many of them reported that they had much yet to be done, and would welcome the extra days to complete their programs. The response from the merchants has been so great that the enterprise has grown in magnitude daily and has now reached proportions not even dreamed of when the movement was first launched.

All of the committees will continue their work and the opinion seems to be unanimous that by moving the date up one week the program will be on even a larger scale than if held as previously planned.

10,000 FILE PAST BRIAND'S BIER TO DO LAST HOMAGE

French "Apostle of Peace" Accorded Tribute from High and Low

PARIS, March 8, (AP)—More than 10,000 persons—porters, shopkeepers, statesmen and all intermediate ranks—filed Tuesday through Aristide Briand's little bedroom to do homage to the dead "apostle of peace."

By nightfall M. Briand's bachelor apartment was filled with flowers. These tributes ran all the way from an imposing piece sent by the German ambassador to single carnations left there by midinettes and wounded war veterans.

The family of the French statesman, who succumbed to a heart attack, was so touched by the genuineness of the affection shown him that the room was kept open two hours and 40 minutes longer than had been planned.

HOOVER PLEDGES AID IN FURTHER BUDGET SLASHES

At Least $125,000,000 Additional Must Be Cut Off, Say Demos

WASHINGTON, March 8, (AP)—Holding new slashes in federal expenditures a necessity if the budget is to be balanced, President Hoover Tuesday pledged the aid of his administration in this work to three democratic controlled house committees.

The president accepted from Capitol Hill a statement that $125,000,000 more must be sliced from a budget already reduced by approximately $477,000,000. Addressing newspapermen gathered at the White House, he reported members of his cabinet were preparing "drastic recommendations" to this end.

"The whole of the administrative officials, he said, "Are cooperating with the special economy committee appointed by the house of representatives in the drive to bring about further drastic economies in federal expenditure."

INTEREST GROWS IN C. C. OPEN MEETING

65 Make Reservations For Box Lunch to Be Held Thursday

Sixty-five persons had made reservations for the box lunches up to 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. This is in addition to the entire membership of the Lions Club which will hold its regular meeting at the factory, in co-operation with the chamber of commerce.

The membership committee urges all members of the chamber of commerce, prospective members and friends to attend this, the first of a series of such meetings to be held. The box lunch will cost only 25 cents and those who wish may bring extra guests.

DAMAGED FRUIT CROP PREDICTED OVER PARISAREA

Seasonal Low of 24 Degrees Established Here Tuesday

A ravished fruit crop in Parisarea was the prediction made Tuesday night as the mercury sagged to 25 degrees in approaching the 24-degree mark established early Tuesday morning as the seasonal low.

Reports Tuesday indicated the fruit in bloom spared by the freezing temperature of Monday night would be destroyed by Wednesday morning. Greatest damage threatened the pear crop as most of the trees in the county were in bloom. Heavy toll from the peach crop was predicted although many of the trees had not blossomed.

The coldest wave of the winter blew through Paris early Tuesday morning as the temperature sank to 24 degrees for a winter's low. Chilling northern winds followed a cold, misty rain early Monday night.

Rebounding from a 26-degree mark established early Sunday morning, the mercury climbed to 41 degrees Monday before dropping to a minimum of 24 degrees early Tuesday morning, according to the records of T. L. Rogers, local weather observer. The temperature hovered around the freezing point all day Tuesday but took a downward plunge early Tuesday night.

WILL ROGERS Says:

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif., Mar. 7.—Out of 120,000,000 people, if Lindbergh had had as much advice on how to fly the ocean as he has had on this case he would have cracked up in St. Louis.

I think the boy has used splendid judgment in this, the same as he has done since we first heard of him. Remember, it was his sober judgment that first suggested "Get the boy back at any cost" and then start worrying what the punishment would be, if they caught 'em. And remember there is other kidnaped ones out that are just as dear to their folks as this baby of his.

So get all the folks in that's kidnaped. Then make some new laws and start over again.

Yours,

Will Rogers.

FIRST WORD OF ENCOURAGEMENT YET GIVEN OUT

News Supplied Shortly After Friend Leaves on Secret Mission

POLICE FORCE AT ESTATE IS REDUCED

Incoming Mail Freed of Any Suspicion of Police Censorship

HOPEWELL, N. J., March 8 (AP) —Definite progress was being made Tuesday night toward returning the kidnaped Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr., to the home of his famous parents.

This news came from the Sourland mountain estate a few hours after a close friend of Colonel Lindbergh had left on a secret mission.

Is Answer To Question

The encouraging word—the first of its kind to come from the hill-top since the child was stolen a week ago Tuesday night—was telephoned to state police at Trenton in response to a question at the night press conference there.

"What are the latest developments in the police investigation? What are the latest developments in Colonel Lindbergh's private, separate investigation?"

"Progress," was the single answer made over the telephone by Major Charles Schoeffel of the state police.

Conversation Related

Earlier the New York Daily News related the following conversation with a member of the Lindbergh household during the afternoon:

"Has any progress been made?"

"We have not made any headway in identifying the kidnapers, but we are more hopeful for the return of the baby since the last two letters were received. That is all I can say."

And finally it was learned there had been a marked reduction in the corps of state police stationed at the Lindbergh estate.

Mail Freed of Suspicion

The incoming mail was freed of any suspicion of police censorship. Then, Tuesday morning, a press conference question brought the statement that the "hands off" policy also applied to telegraphic and telephonic communications.

Whether the next step would be complete removal of the authorities themselves was conjectural. Governor A. Harry Moore has offered to take such action should the colonel request it.

Meanwhile, although state police denied there had been any identification of the ladder used by the kidnapers, it was learned the wood of which the ladder was constructed was similar to excess lumber sold by the Skillman (N. J.) state home for epileptics.

The ladder is one of the few definite clues police have had. It was used to gain entrance to the nursery when the infant was stolen and was found about 70 feet west of the house along a trail of footprints.

Interesting Answers Received

Two press conference questions also developed interesting answers as to police investigation inside the hilltop home of the Lindberghs.

The disclosure that police still are scrutinizing the possibility some member of the household was involved in the theft of the child came in response to the following query:

"The refusal of state police to answer any questions pertaining to a possibility that a servant or employe in the Lindbergh home was involved in the kidnaping has created a general impression that such a theory is the most plausible now held by police. Do police care to say anything that will exonerate any or all members of the household?"

Col. H. Norman Schwartzkopf, superintendent of state police, replied:

"Investigation incomplete."

Progress Not Learned

The increasing interest in the possibility of successful direct and confidential negotiations between the kidnapers and the Lindberghs

FORT WORTH, Tex., March 8 (AP)—Seven Texas cities were seeking the Democratic state convention to be held May 24, as members of the state executive committee began arriving here Tuesday.

CHICAGO, March 8, (AP)—One of the men believed by officials to have perpetrated the widespread bomb plot against prominent Italians last December was arrested here Tuesday.

WASHINGTON, March 8, (AP)—The house, by a huge majority, Tuesday acted to limit use of the federal injunctive power in labor disputes and to void the "yellow dog" contract.

Minor Differences

It passed the Norris-La Guardia anti-injunction bill, 363 to 13, emulating the senate's overwhelming 75 to 5 endorsement of a week ago, and leaving only a settlement of minor differences between the houses before it goes to the White House.

The house vote came after seven hours of debate which, culminating years of controversy, disclosed only two spokesmen in opposition, Representatives Beck, Pennsylvania, republican, and Blanton, Texas democrat.

Here Are Provisions

Both the senate and house bills would:

Declare as public policy labor's rights to organize and bargain collectively.

Outlaw the "yellow dog" contract which forbids employes to join labor unions.

Prohibit injunctive relief in labor disputes without a hearing and finding of fact, unless: unlawful acts are committed; substantial injury to property would follow; there is no adequate remedy at law; public officers are unable or unwilling to furnish protection and reasonable efforts have been made to settle the dispute.

Grant defendants in contempt suits the right to a jury trial and a new presiding judge.

Light snow fell steadily Tuesday in the panhandle region as the storm crept slowly to the South and East. Considerable damage to fruit and grain crops was reported.

The panhandle suffered the coldest weather of the season, but the absence of strong winds limited its severity. Only along the Gulf coast were strong winds reported.

Cold rain fell in southeast and some parts of central Texas. Other parts of the state had overcast skies.

King of Hoboes Registers Gibraltar Tuesday Night

By P. A. RISIAN

When the editor told the writer, who is travel editor for The News, he had an interview with a hobo coming up Tuesday evening preparations were made for a hurried trip to the courthouse basement. That is the local flop house, it is understood. But the hobo in question was registered at the Gibraltar hotel.

Although Al Kaufman, 22, self-styled King of Hoboes, can not speak, having lost his voice in a boxing bout a few years ago, he is a wiz at writing. Probably he absorbed the gift from Jim Tully, with whom he claims to have traveled for some time.

Kaufman has traveled all over the world and is now on a tour through the South, planning to wind up at San Francisco and from there go to the Asiatic countries.

"I guess I was born with the travel urge," wrote Al. "I have been at it ever since I was ten years old. I was born in London, England, but left there when I was ten. After two years as a newsie and bootblack in New York, took to the open road."

While touring Kansas via the box car route, he met Jim Tully. He writes of how they made the Kansas wheat harvests and started crap games with the workers. "Sometimes we ate beefsteak," he wrote, "but sometimes we had to make out on coffee and sinkers."

Asked how he got his money, Kaufman explained that he raises

FARM NEWS OF THE WEEK

Bedding Of Sweet Potatoes In Lamar County Has Begun

EXPECT ACREAGE TO BE INCREASED IN THIS SECTION

County Agent Gives Hints On Preparation of Seed And Hotbeds

While several of the sweet potato growers of Lamar county have bedded a part of their seed potatoes, the greater part of the seed potatoes will be bedded within the next few days, A. L. Edmiaston, county agent said Tuesday.

Mr. Edmiaston said there were 2,000 bushels or more of certified sweet potato seed available in this county at the beginning of the planting season. There are also a few farmers in the county who do not plant certified seed. It is thought the acreage planted to sweet potatoes will be increased this year, due largely to the unusually large supply of good seed.

To prevent stem rot of sweet potatoes, Mr. Edmiaston recommends the dipping of seed potatoes in a solution of corrosive sublimate, one ounce corrosive sublimate to eight gallons of water. The tubers should be allowed to remain in the solution about eight to ten minutes. Potatoes should be treated in wooden vessels only. Corrosive sublimate is a strong poison and should be kept out of reach of animals. After treating 10 bushels of tubers in 24 gallons of the solution, one-half ounce of corrosive sublimate dissolved in hot water should be added and the solution made up to the original volume by adding water. This process should be repeated after the treatment of each 10 bushels until 30 bushels are treated. The solution should than be thrown away and a fresh one made. If corrosive sublimate is unavailable, a solution of one pint of formaldehyde to 30 gallons of water will be found satisfactory. Tubers should be kept in the formaldehyde solution five minutes.

In preparing hotbeds, Mr. Edmiaston pointed out the use of the same soil year after year in the hotbed often causes diseases to become widely distributed.

He says soil once used in a hotbed should be hauled away and all the rubbish around the bed should be raked up and taken away or burned. The framework of the bed and the ground around it should be thoroughly soaked with a solution of formaldehyde, one pint to 30 gallons of water, and repeated after 24 hours. The soil for the hotbed should be obtained where potatoes have never grown, if possible from some high spot in the woods. The upper six inches of the soil should be thrown away and only the subsoil used. Rich soil is not necessary for the hotbed. The implements used to handle and haul away the old soil should not be used to handle the new soil unless disinfected first. A grade of sand or subsoil should be used which will not bake or form a crust through which the sprouts can not emerge.

In regions where potato diseases occur, the use of stable manure in the hotbed is a practice of doubtful value, since potatoes discarded or fed to stock find their way too easily to the manure pile, M. T. Edmiaston said.

The first mayor to be elected by popular vote in the United States was Cornelius W. Lawrence, who was chosen mayor of New York City in 1834.

Fertilizer Reduces Costs Of Producing Truck Crops

Profitable truck crop growing depends upon high yields of quality products. Experiments have shown that the proper use of fertilizer is one of the surest means available to the truck grower for increasing his yields and thereby his profits. Results obtained during 1930 by Dr. J. C. Miller, horticulturalist, Agricultural Experiment Station, Baton Rouge, show that spring beans respond to the proper use of fertilizer both at Houma and Baton Rouge. At Houma beans fertilized with 600 pounds of 4-8-4 produced 60.28 bushels more beans per acre than unfertilized beans and that at Baton Rouge beans fertilized with 400 pounds of 4-8-4 fertilizer produced 22.55 bushels more per acre than beans receiving no fertilizer. The unfertilized land produced 104.87 bushels per acre at Houma and 60.23 bushels at Baton Rouge and the fertilized land produced 165.15 bushels at Houma and 82.78 at Baton Rouge.

The extra 60.28 bushels produced at Houma were produced by the use of $10.80 worth of fertilizer and the extra 22.55 bushels produced at Baton Rouge by the use of $7.20 worth of fertilizer. The extra 60.28 bushels produced at Houma were produced at a cost of 16.3 cents per bushel and the extra 22.55 bushels at Baton Rouge at a cost of 31.5 cents per bushel.

Results obtained with cabbage at Baton Rouge during 1931 show that they respond to fertilizer equally as well as beans.

Soil receiving 800 pounds of 4-8-4 fertilizer per acre before planting and 200 pounds of nitrate of soda as a sido dressing produced 53.6 100 pound crates more cabbage per acre than unfertilized soil. The unfertilized soil produced 170.3 100-pound crates and the fertilized 223.9 crates per acre.

The extra 53.6 crates produced on the fertilized soil were produced at a fertilizer cost of $17.72 per acre or a cost of 21.9 cents per crate.

PRODUCTION OF DAIRY PRODUCTS URGED BY FARMER

Cunningham Favors Improving Roads, Establishing Cream Routes

By S. A. CUNNINGHAM

Conditions at this time point to a failure of farm crops this year. It has rained for the last 15 weeks and no oats sowed or land stirred for corn or western feed crops. Oats should have been in the ground in October to January. It gets very dry here in mid-summer and such crops cannot stand the heat.

We had a bountiful yield in 1931, but it is not nature's way to hand us two blessings in succession. Don't listen to the optimists too much. They'll get you in bad.

Paris has a market for all the cream we can produce. Cows will thrive in wet weather and crop pests just the same. There is an all-weather road from Paris to Petty, Roxton, Sumner, Arthur City, Blossom, Deport and Broadway. None of us live very far from one of these roads. If we put enough cream cans on the side of these hard surface roads, Lamar Creamery will have a truck along there each morning to take them and leave empties. If each community could concentrate at the schoolhouse and make a good road out and have someone contract to deliver their milk to the highway each morning it will pay the family expenses.

Don't borrow any cash from the banks or from the government. Depend on your cream check twice per month and farm besides. Don't fool yourself, it took us from April, 1917 to get in the ditch, and it will take years to get on our feet again with the best of management. Keep cows, pigs and chickens to help you. Cows for your extra grass, pigs for your 1931 surplus feed and chickens to get the part that winter failed to grab.

GEORGE ELLIOTT TO BECOME CANDIDATE

George Elliott, well known farmer of Blossom, has authorized The News to announce he will be a candidate for commissioner in Precinct 1. His formal announcement will appear in The News at a later date.

POTATO ACREAGE IS INCREASED IN CHOCTAW COUNTY

Crop Is Estimated at One-Third Normal or Less This Year

Special to The News

HUGO, March 8.—Planting of Irish potatoes in Choctaw county, delayed at least two weeks by heavy rains, has been practically completed, County Agent W. B. Gernert has announced. The acreage this year is estimated at from one-fourth to one-third of normal.

Gernert believes that the reduction in acreage is due mostly to lack of money necessary to purchase the usual amount of seed and fertilizer. Some have planted without fertilizer, where soils are in a fair state of natural fertility.

This year Irish cobblers have been favored for planting more than the Red Triumph variety.

With regard to outlook for other crops, little can be said now. Activities are far behind a normal schedule due to rains which have interfered with plowing.

At the Grand

Playing at the Grand Thursday and Friday.

Fairbanks fights tigers! This might be the headline describing one of the feats in the star's travel film "Around the World in 80 Minutes with Douglas Fairbanks," the United Artists picture which comes to the Grand theater on Thursday and Friday.

There is a sequence in the film in which the Doug of unsurpassed courage, finding himself face to face with a maddened tiger, raises his gun and pulls the triger, only to find the gun is not loaded. Throwing the weapon and discretion from him, Fairbanks leaps barehanded at the animal.

The ensuing fight and the conclusion of the episode is worthy of a serial's ending on a chapter, which time one is advised to come next week for the following episode.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON
Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.
Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.
Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds and flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (ad)

At the Plaza

"Go ahead" is apparently the motto of Frederic March, popular Paramount star, who comes to the Plaza theater today and tomorrow in "Strangers in Love." To a world in which most nice people are timid souls afraid to take what is rightfully theirs, Mr. March brings welcome relief; for this man gets action. In "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," you remember, he had the courage to drink a deadly mixture that might—and did—produce disastrous effects. Now, although "Strangers in Love" is a modern comedy, as different as possible from the Stevenson classic, Mr. March again displays an iron nerve.

For the hero of "Strangers In Love," a happy-go-lucky young man named Buddy Drake, has the delightful impudence to pretend to be his own brother Arthur; and, as Arthur, to make love, cash checks, and generally embark on a career of amusing madness. It must be said for Buddy that although no one would want to be Arthur without good reason, he has that reason. Arthur has taken Buddy's money, and being Arthur seems the best way to get it back.

Do you suppose the girl ever knows that the man who begins this love affair is not the man who ends it?

Helps Women Avoid Pains

MORE than half a century of successful use has shown that Cardui helps women to avoid much that they formerly suffered—misery from minor functional disturbances, monthly suffering due to a weakened condition. Cardui acts as a tonic for the system, and tends to improve the general health. It is of especial value to weak, nervous, run-down women, needing just such a strengthening medicine. Those who suffer every month should build up their strength to assist in the natural correction of the painful condition. When you need Cardui, buy a bottle and take it regularly and persistently. Perhaps several bottles will be needed. Finally, may you share the enthusiasm of the thousands of women who have said: "Cardui helped me!"

When CHILDREN

—don't gain weight
—don't grow strong
—don't keep well

The stomach is not to blame when a child is finicky about food. Nor is every sluggish girl or boy constipated. Instead of a lot of medicine, give a little pure syrup of figs. You'll see a change in twenty-four hours! In a couple of weeks, your youngster will have the appetite of a young animal!

It's true, mothers, for it's Nature. California syrup of figs is bottled health for the little ones.

For Any Sluggish Child

Pale, sickly children whose tongues are always coated, and who are never really hungry, are suffering from stasis. That means a sluggish colon; a colon clogged with waste. They need the "California treatment." You can give this treatment yourself, any time, anywhere; it's simple. Every druggist has California syrup of figs all bottled, with full directions for a babe of two years or child in his teens. Its delicious taste makes it delightful to use; no child ever tired of it.

Start tonight, giving enough to cleanse the colon of every bit of poisonous waste. Then a spoonful or so, every other day, until the child's appetite, color, weight, and general health tell you all sluggishness or constipation has been conquered.

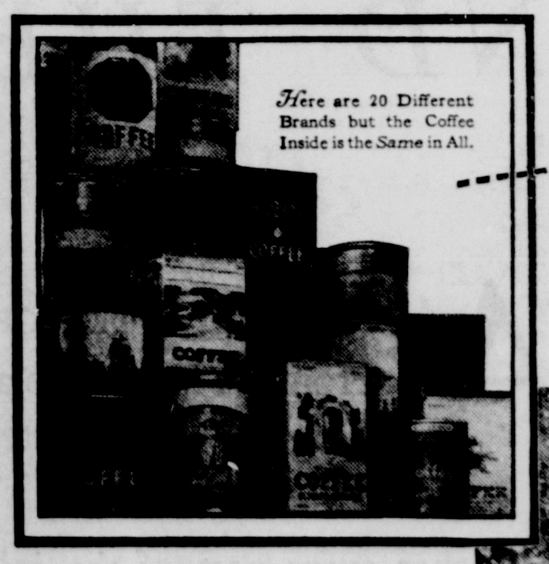
When a cold or severe sickness has sapped a child's strength and stamina, remember California syrup of figs.

IMPORTANT!

If you want to get real results, get the real California syrup of figs. Do not accept any bottle which does not say CALIFORNIA Syrup of Figs.

Pleasing Husbands With Coffee a Problem in 3 Homes in 5

Why You Must Do More Than Change "Brands" If You Want to Get Better Coffee



Here are 20 Different Brands but the Coffee Inside is the Same in All.

For a Real Change

(FOLGER PHOTO)

How many times have you changed your brand of coffee trying to find one your husband really liked?

Not one woman in 50, domestic science experts tell us, knows the real reason why coffee that men like is so hard to get. Yet the reason is simple.

All your life you're probably been using just one kind of coffee. For according to U. S. Import Statistics almost 70% of all coffee sold is this one kind. You may try 20 different brands and styles of package. But it's still the same coffee inside.

So for a real change, you must do more than change "brands." You need a different KIND OF COFFEE!

A Different Country

Down along the West Coast of Central America, we procure coffees utterly different in flavor and richness. These mountain coffees, experts concede, have a rare tang and mellow body, not duplicated anywhere else in the world.

If you want something different in coffee, try them! Less than one pound in 20 of the world's coffee comes from this famous district. It's a flavor that few people in a lifetime ever have a chance to enjoy. See for yourself how unusual it is.

A 3-Day Test

Order a pound of Folger's from your grocer today. It comes in a special key-opening vacuum tin that brings it right to your coffee pot as fresh as it left the roaster. Drink it tomorrow morning. Next morning serve the coffee you have been using.

Transplanting baby coffee trees in the Antigua district where Folger secures coffees famed the world over for extra richness and flavor.

The third morning serve Folger's again. Then choose between them.

If for any reason you decide against Folger's, your grocer will refund your money. We'll pay him—gladly. But if you do as 8 out of 10 do, you'll never be satisfied to return to less flavorful coffees. Try it. You'll be glad you did. 130

This will be preceded by the regular meeting of Sunday school officers and teachers at 7:30 p. m.

The meeting will be held in the main auditorium of the Young People's department and will be comfortably warm on the inside, regardless of the cold wave.

The Sunday school teachers and officers will meet Supterintendent Roberts in a brief general conference at 7 p. m., followed by departmental meetings.

JEAN: Tell me, Dot, how often do you wash a girdle?

DOT: Every day or so—that keeps it dainty

JEAN: But doesn't it stretch and get flabby?

DOT: Not a bit. I wash it the way that preserves ELASTICITY*. Then it always fits perfectly . . .

*The Lux Way to preserve ELASTICITY

How flattering a new foundation garment is! Even if it's the merest wisp of a girdle its elasticity makes it fit smoothly, and yet so lightly!

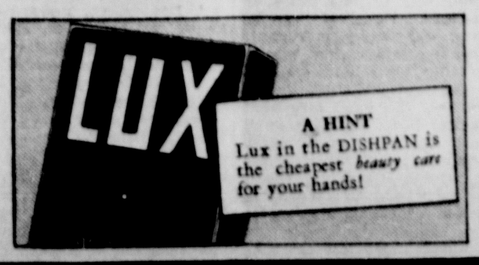
But when this precious elasticity is gone, the most expensive garment is flabby, ill-fitting—actually disfiguring! It's because gentle Lux preserves elasticity that it keeps your foundations as perfect in fit as when they were new.

Wash this 2-minute way: Use lukewarm water—Lux dissolves instantly in it. Squeeze suds through fabric, rinse twice.

Lux every day or so, for foundations absorb perspiration. Perspiration acids discolor and rot fabrics.

Don't rub foundations with cake soap—this destroys elasticity, leaves the garment flabby, ill-fitting.

Avoid ordinary soaps—cakes, powders, chips. These often contain harmful alkali which weakens threads, fades color. Lux has no harmful alkali. Anything safe in water alone is safe in Lux.



LUX for underthings keeps them like new in spite of frequent washing

MAN: BRAGGART

MAN is an inconsistent animal at best. And he is a large bundle of boasting at all times. Associating the two traits men boast in one breath and call their fellows braggarts in the next. Though our dual standard of human appraisal will not permit of self-praise, the tradesman, the manufacturer and the auctioneer boast of the superiority of their wares and are not charged with complacency even by their competitors in business. Self-praise in individuals is not pardonable even in such individuals who can prove their boastful claims. The business man is never charged with braggadocio but he must make good his claims or bear the indelible stamp of the cheat and fraud. The boasts of men will always find them out.

Continuing the analysis this duality of boasting may be carried to communities, nations, fraternal orders, religion, racial distinctions, automobiles, horses, wives and so on down to pigs and whatnot. Boastful beings brag up their country, town, church, automobiles and pigs and accuse the other fellow of prejudice and partisanship when he ventures to narrate the fine points of his country, political party and wife. "The faults which men condemn are their own."

There is an ancient fable which contemplates boasting in this manner:

"A man walking with that noble animal, the lion, showed the lion in the ostentation of human superiority a sign of a man slaying a lion. Upon which the lion said very justly, we lions are none of us painters, else we could show a hundred men killed by lions for one killed by man.

EVERY DAY BRAINS

DR. Karl G. Miller, University of Pennsylvania psychologist, recently gave public utterances to a thought that is not new but surprisingly novel in expression. Many have thought it without daring to express it. As expressed by Dr. Miller, it is:

"The American college must recognize more fully its responsibilities to the student whose interests are not primarily intellectual as well as to the prospective scholar. From my contact, with the parents of boys seeking admission to the university I feel that the proud father wants his son to go through a ripening process, to make many contacts to become interested in many things, to have a good deal of fun and to do reasonably well in his studies.

"Unless I am mistaken, the inculcation of true scholarship, the love of learning, the inspiration for research—these do not appear in the definition of college education as it exists in the minds of prospective students and their parents."

Had the professor's candor gone a little bit farther he might have said that it is just as well, for how many institutions of higher learning could meet the scholarly needs of the inspired student and how many profound scholars could the world absorb without starving them?

The modern conception of a college and university is not a place where erudite professors are made, but a factory for the development of everyday brains and culture.

"EXTERMINATING" RELIGION

THE Russian soviets every so often celebrate the "extinction of religion." And just as often Religion itself, smiling from her heights, will wish the joy of this celebration.

Many times has religion been "extinguished." It was pretty nearly done to death by dry rot in imperial Rome, but it came back again with amazing world authority in the form of Christianity. Some of the great skeptics thought that it was extinguished when the name of God was left out of the constitution, but somehow it flourished with the people in unabated vigor.

The French revolution, like the Russian, undertook to abolish religion and put reason in its place, but even as the convention decreed the deification of reason, the people went on kneeling in the church.

Not by convention laws, decrees, arson or reason can you take away from man his religion. Only the individual himself can do that.

ALL OF US

By Marshall Maslin

ARE you waiting for something that is Perfect? Wait no longer. You are fooling yourself.

Nothing is perfect.

Nothing is just as you dreamed it would be. Nothing was formed to the specifications of your ideal. Nothing splendid is precise, and absolutely right. No experience, no great art, no noble human being is Perfect. .... Forget that vain and foolish aspiration—come down to earth.

Marshall Maslin

If you are waiting for the perfect friend, wait on and on and on—for he will never arrive. If you are expecting the perfect child, you waste the pain and the night of agony—for how can perfection be born from you or any other human being? If you are dreaming of your own perfection, strive on and on, but do not break your heart on your human failure. There's a goal that man may attain.

Stand before a great painting. Read a book that a great genius has written. Watch the amazing dancer. Listen to that astounding symphony. Stand in the shade, looking up, of some immortal human being.

But never will you find perfection. The painting has a weak spot, the book has a dull page, the dancer falters, the symphony stalls, the genius nods and forgets his own greatness. Life is nowhere perfect.

Well, what if it is not? Why should you demand perfection? Little pigmy, like all the rest of us, why claim so much?

Seek perfection, dream of it, but silence your clamorous demands. Ask for passion, ask for gusto, ask for appetite, for joy, for imagination, ask for inner glory and wild delight, and savage beauty—and truth and strength and sudden understanding. These are enough. These are foods on which a slight human being may feed and grow tall and be glad he is alive.

But do not ask for perfection, for perfection is a stopping point, and beyond perfection there's nothing to do but stare and remember and sit and dream.

Ask for perfection—and you ask too much—too much for a feeble, human creature to lift and to carry on his way.

Backward Glances

By A. W. Neville

A friend has sent me a copy of the last will of General Sam Houston, copied from the paper filed in the court house at Huntsville, and I am reprinting it so that people who value such things may clip it and preserve it. It reads:

IN the name of God, the Father, the Son and Holy Spirit, I, Sam Houston, of the County of Walker, and State of Texas, being fully aware of the uncertainty of life, and the certainty of death, do ordain and declare this my last will and testament:

First, I will that all my just debts be paid out of my personal effects and I think sufficient, without disposing of any of the family servants.

Second, I bequeath my entire remaining estate to my beloved wife, Margaret, and our children, and I desire that they may remain with her, so long as she may remain in widowhood; and should she at any time marry, I desire that my daughters should be subject to her control so long as their minority lasts.

Third, my will is that my sons should receive solid and useful education, and that no portion of their time may be devoted to the study of abstract science. I greatly desire that they may possess a thorough knowledge of the English language with a good knowledge of the Latin language. I also request that they be instructed in the knowledge of the Holy Scriptures and next to these that they be rendered thorough in a knowledge of geography and history. I wish my sons early taught an entire contempt for novels and light reading as well as to the character and morals of those with whom they may be associated or instructed.

Fourth, I leave my wife as executrix and the following named gentlemen as my executors: Thomas Carothers, Carrol Smith and Anthony M. Branch, my much beloved friends, in whom I place entire confidence, to make such disposition of my real estate as may seem to them best for the necessities and interest and welfare of my family. To my dearly beloved wife, I confide the rearing, education and training of our sons and daughters.

Fifth, to my eldest son, Sam Houston, I bequeath my sword, won in the battle of San Jacinto, to be drawn only in defense of the constitution, the laws and liberties of his country, if any attempt be made to assail one of these. I wish it to be used in its vindication. It is my will that my library should be left at the disposition of my dear wife.

Sixth, to my dearly beloved wife I bequeath my watch and all my jewelry, subject to her disposition.

(The will is too long to go in the space allotted to these stories, and the remainder of it will be printed tomorrow.)

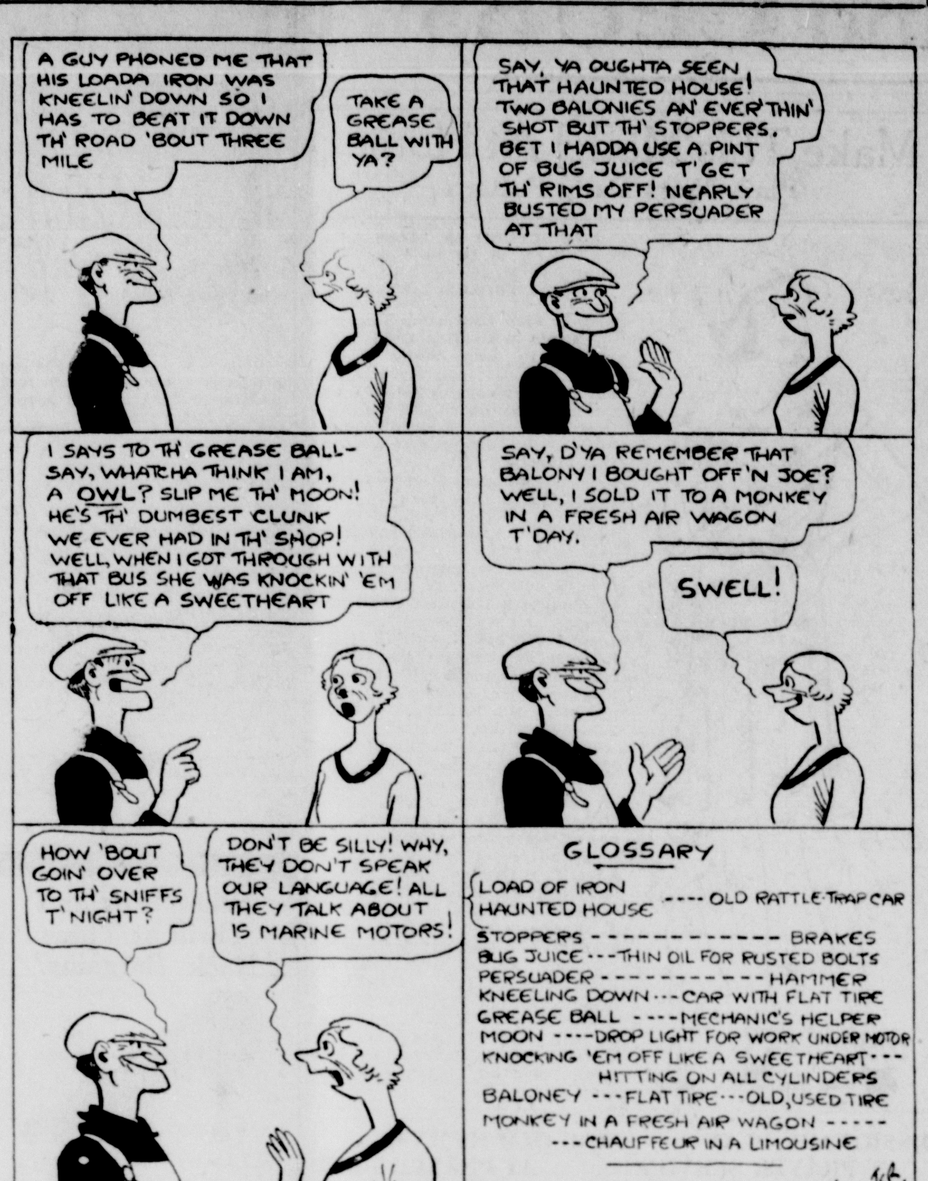
Funeral services were held at 2 o'clock in the Episcopal church for Rev. Dr. J. K. Black, rector of that church, who died Friday lacking one day of being 77 years of age. Requiem celebration of holy communion was held at 11 o'clock by Bishop Harry T. Moore, who also conducted the funeral.

J. A. Hanes of Emberson and Mrs. Emma Ford of Belk, were married at the Presbyterian church at Emberson.

J. P. Lenoir and family returned from Jackson, Tenn., where he had been employed in a Dupont powder plant. The war having ended the plant had closed.

Mrs. Mary Smith, 76, pioneer resident of Lamar county, died at the home of one of her sons on Pine Mill road. Burial was made Monday in Union Grove cemetery.

They Don't Speak Our Language



MY NEW YORK

By James Aswell

NEW YORK.—Manhattan Tableau, Mid-town:

The hotels . . . Clusters of hotels, clinging together against the elusive wash of tourists and traveling men, as if hopeful of snaring some of the restless crowds . . . . Memories of the old Broadway Central, where I stayed one night before shipping to Europe as a bellhop, gaining the impression that New York was a town of girl mirrors and red plush and dark marble plumbing fixtures . . . . Ten years too late . . . .

The Astor, immense and stubborn monument to the glory of the early Nineteen Hundreds . . The college boys standing in the entrance looking hungrily at the turbulent crowds and the most preposterous agented street in the world . . . . The pretty women in the lobby; there are always pretty women in the lobby of the Astor, and of the Plaza . . . .

Not far away, the Woodstock, where my parents stayed during a visit when I had my first cubbyhole apartment in Greenwich Village . . . . And the Hermitage, which collected my final $2.50 the night the boat docked from Bremerhaven, and left me without a dime to eat or get back home . . . The Lincoln, a little way west, where I broadcast every Monday . . . . The Picadilly, where two artists and a writer I know took rooms to escape the pounding turmoil of the town and work—in the heart of the Rialto blaze! . . . .

And that hotel a few blocks to the north, where a honeymooning couple I know stopped to find their room commanded a full view of a chorus dressing room and had to have the manager of the hotel call the theater and tell the careless chorines to pull down their shades.

And, going east, the high-hat Algonquin, whose manager, Frank Case, knows more writers than anyone else in the world . . . . It was to the Algonquin that I went, nervously, to discuss my first story for College Humor with H. N. Swanson, the "boy editor" (I was 21 and he was 25)—and the only thing I remember of the interview was that he said, "You put on your overcoat the same way Corey Ford does" . . . . And I said, "Thanks" . . . . And he replied, "Don't be sarcastic I didn't mean anything"

The hotels. . . . Sphinxes to collect memories . . . It's odd how all the books about New York by lovers of the town must concern themselves in great part with hotels, which are supposed to be for transients! . . . . .

RAT-TAT-TATTLE.

Salaries: Russ Columbo makes $7,000 a week, Morton Downey, collects $8,500 every pay day, while Bing Crosby stows away $7,500, while Amos and Andy still worry along on a $9,000 check 52 times a year . . . . The Rehabilitation Institute here, which "re-makes" people seriously battered in accidents, claims that those who have suffered a maiming accident usually attain success more rapidly than the uninjured, once they have been helped back to their feet . . . .

Billie Dove has become an opening-night addict during her visit to the east, rarely missing a new show's first performance, and never appearing in the same gown or jewels twice in succession . . . . James Montgomery Flagg always makes me think of a scholarly and very dignified senator . . . . But he waxes fiery in argument and can spurn high-falutin oratory as abruptly as the next man . . . . Inverted quotations seem to be booming among the title pickers—"Too True to be Good" is coming up as a play and a recent novel is called "The Young Die Good."

LATE.

Plays come and go so rapidly these days that even the best informed lose track. The other night a large limousine drew up in front of the Biltmore theater, where "Zombie" has been running. Out of the tonneau emerged a tail-coated and evening-gowned party of six. One of the men was a commentator on Broadway doings of some local fame.

The professional man-about-town rushed toward the deserted box office, looking at his watch with a puzzled expression.

A janitor was the only person about. He was leisurely sweeping the foyer. The Broadwayite accosted him: "What's the matter? Doesn't the box office man stay on duty 10 minutes after the curtain?"

"Yassir, he do. But he doan stay on duty twenty-fo' hours after de show close fo' good!"

Comments From Contemporaries

DENISON HERALD:

The reason why we are often led to believe that such organizations as the chamber of commerce or other civic bodies are not rendering the fullest service is because we consider them as belonging to someone else. We do not think of the chamber of commerce as "our" organization but speak of its leaders as "they" and of the body as "their" organization. A chamber of commerce is made up, supported by, and must serve the entire citizenship of a city. If it is not, then it is useless. In considering any proposed move for Denison's betterment, would it not be better to ask, "What are we going to do?" rather than, "What are 'they' going to do?"

McKINNEY COURIER-GAZETTE

No better way to help build up McKinney can be devised than by patronizing our home merchants and home manufacturing plants. By increasing their business, we help employment for the laboring class; we help the local merchant to pay better rent; we help swell local bank deposits; we increase money circulating in local trade channels, thereby making better times for everybody. It is utterly foolish from a business standpoint for you to spend your money out of town, unless there is some special, very exceptional reason therefor.

Washington Daily Letter

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, — Whenever a conservative says anything, radicals are so in the habit of shying bricks at him that they instinctively let fly in his direction even when he chances to make a liberal suggestion.

For example, while it is true that President Silas H. Strawn of the United States Chamber of Commerce probably did not intend to put himself on record progressively, in arguing recently that every citizen with an annual income of $1,000 or more ought to "pay something' 'toward supporting the government, in order to make him "tax conscious" he really was expressing a very advanced idea.

Instead of recognizing it as an enlightened concept, however, all that the "common people's" spokesmen seem to sense in President Strawn's utterance is a complete failure to realize that no self-supporting citizen does escape contributing to the government's upkeep.

A Dayton, O., newspaper published by James M. Cox, former Democratic presidential candidate, sums up liberal criticism of Strawn's contention in a forceful parasraph.

Says this paper:

"The federal government, through its excises and tariffs, levies on the necessaries of life taxes which increase their cost. Every citizen however, poor, who earns his living, pays these taxes, but—

"The taxpayer doesn't know he pays them."

Exactly. The average taxpayer has no notion how he is being soaked. Would he continue to stand it, if he did?

President Strawn wants him let in on the secret.

One may justifiably wonder if Strawn has maturely considered what he is advocating. If ever an administration was the creation and embodiment of just such folks as President Strawn and his United States Chamber of Commerce associates, it is the administration in office now—and he demands that all the people be made as acutely "conscious" as possible of the stiff price they are paying for it.

But that's what he says "Tax conscious."

One of the brainiest men in congress today is Representative David J. Lewis of Maryland.

Pere-iminently he is a tariff expert; was a member of the original federal tariff commission—and is far from an enthusiastic protectionist. That is to say he considers that protection has been vastly overdone and abused.

"Nevertheless," admits the Marylander, "a situation occasionally arises in which it is to the public interest to encourage some struggling infant industry. In such instances, aid should be extended, but it should not take the form of a tariff; it should take the form of an open-and-above-board subsidy. The industries, however, prefer the tariff method, because it can be continued, without attracting muc hattention, long after the excuse for it has passed.

Diet and Health

By Logan Clendening, M. D., Author of "The Human Body"

One out of about every 100 letters from readers which come to this desk states the opinion of the diagnosis of the writer that he or she has an acid condition of the body.

Dr. Clendening

This common belief concerns one of the most complicated phenomena in the functions of the body. Our fluids are neutral—neither acid nor alkaline, or, to be exact, only very slightly alkaline—in health, and the body fights fiercely to preserve that neutrality. Even the slightest disturbance of the balance causes grave symptoms, and when the scales are considerably unbalanced it is almost impossible to restore them, and death rapidly ensues.

We have various ways of measuring the amount of acidity of the body fluids and of the accumulation of one form of reaction over another. These ways which have been devised are indeed extremely accurate. One is by measuring the carbon dioxide capacity of the blood plasma. As this is lowered it indicates a change from neutral to acid in the body fluids.

One of the things which causes such a change is lack of oxygen delivered to the cells in sufficient amounts. When this occurs an acid which is always formed from muscular activity—lactic acid—and which is normally burned by the oxygen in the tissues, accumulates.

Thus in states of low blood pressure—below 70 systolic—there is a gradual lowering of the carbon dioxide capacity of the blood plasma and this gets worse as the blood pressure falls. In states of surgical shock the condition is so severe as to be probably the most important factor in the fatal outcome so frequent in such cases.

Acidosis of an entirely different type is that seen in diabetes. If sugar is so insufficiently burned in the body that there is not a coincident burning of fats, the fatty acids, which are incomplete stages of fat combustion, accumulate and this acidosis results in diabetic coma. It is a form which can probably be entirely disregarded in persons other than diabetics. Fortunate, also, is the fact that our powers of treating it, by insulin, are now very effe...ve.

The body guards its neutrali... so jealously—even the change ... the blood reaction from the norm... al pH 7.4 to pH 6.95, which ... infinitesimally over the acid ran... results in coma—and maintains ... efficient an automatic set of d... vices to make the proper adju... ments that it is difficult to a... whether any actual disease p... tures of an obscure nature a... due to acidosis. TALKS WITH PARENTS

By Garry C. Myers, Ph. D.

Suppose you have not practiced in the earlier years of your child many of the principles you consider workable among those which from time to time have been set forth in this column; and suppose you now discover in your child, say of 7 to 12, some undesirable habits pretty well established and the absence of certain desirable ones, what is the thing to do?

What you are likely to do is to condemn yourself and to suffer deep remorse; also you may foolishly set about to make your child over all at once.

Concerning the first likelihood, the writer is aware that for some parents an occasional article in this column may prove harmful.

Now, my fellow parent, please do not let yourself grow panicky. Don't be too hard on yourself. You have done the best you could. You have been conscientious. Anyway, the past is past.

Moreover, articles like these are of necessity brief, each turned about a single topic. Consequently in your mind some items are given excessive emphasis, and some of your small failures are made to appear unduly large. Over against these relatively small failures your huge successes may have shrunk almost to nothingness. Unfortunately it is not easy to help all readers to keep perspective.

Many a parent leaving one of these articles no doubt with a feeling of deep remorse, calling herself a most unworthy parent, may have had successes in relation to her children and her family life none of us alleged child guidance experts have discussed at all. These successes may be so significant for the future welfare of the child as to render the unduly magnified failures relatively ineffectual. It is these overlooked, undiscovered items which perhaps are the explanation of why some parents who seem to have violated most of the cherished principles of "scientific" child guidance, have children who bye and bye turn out very well.

Let us remember, furthermore, that the child of 7 to 12, whether we consider him well brought or not, has not become what h... in a few days or weeks or mon... He has been developing all th... years since he was born. CANVASS GROUPS is invited to meet with the men from the Legion and the civic clubs of the city at the Masonic temple, where the fourteen districts of the city will be assigned to the various group captains.

Division Method

The Legion members will take four districts, under the leadership of Jimmie Clark, T. W. Russell, Van Anderson and Ted Blard, Leaders for the other districts will be selected by A. G. Pat Mayse, president of the Rotary club, Dr. E. Goolsby, president of the Lions club, Dr. O. W. Robinson president of the Exchange club, Gregory Sallee, president of the Young Men's Luncheon club and J. K. Shirley, president of the High-Twelve club. Each of the civic clubs will have two districts.

Heads of families are urged to decide the pledges to be made before the solicitors call. This will eliminate return calls and facilitate the work. As little as one hour's work per week will be accepted, or a nominal amount of money each week. All families are asked to decide definiteiy what pledge will be made in order that the solicitors may be given definite answers when they call.

All Asked to Help

Dr. Harold G. Cooke, chairman of the committee on unemployment, is urging all employed heads of families to contribute at least a nominal amount of money or work to this cause, pointing out the program will benefit all members of the committee.

"Those of us who are fortunate enough to be employed owe it to our community and to our fellow man to help in this matter," said Sam M. Weiss, commander of the local American Legion post, and vice chairman of the unemployment relief committee. "We have many in Paris, who today, are shivering and who do not have enough to eat. The majority of these people would be glad to support themselves if they had a chance. With the co-operation of those who are able to help, it will be possible for these people to earn at least a part of their food and clothing.

"It is always better," said Mr. Weiss, "to give employment than to give charity. Objects of charity do not ordinarily make better citizens. We owe it to our community to supply work for those who otherwise would become objects of charity and lose much of their self-respect and confidence."

Breedlove Tosses Gorman In Straight Falls; Myers And La Rue Battle to Draw

Maybe it was the chilled atmosphere. And then maybe Breedlove had an appointment. At any rate he made short work of defeating Jack Gorman in the main bout Tuesday night of Protomter Jack J. (Doc) Gilman's weekly wrestling card at Paris Athletic club. The attendance was short, the temperature of 25 degrees keeping many fans at home. Gilman announced the American Legion, with whom the club has a contract for a percentage of gate receipts, would not share in the proceeds because of the small turnout.

First in 14 Minutes.

Breedlove, favorite of the fans for his smooth, fast wrestling, bounded into the ring with his customary zip and soon was hard at work wiggling from arm locks, head scissors and hammer locks, to mention a few holds applied by the ambitious Mr. Gorman. The San Angelo grappler, who wrestled Breedlove to a 45 minute draw two weeks ago, seemed more inclined to wrestling than roughing Tuesday night, with the result the match was remarkably clean. The lightweight champion won the first fall in 14 minutes with a body spread after narrowly escaping being thrown from the ring.

The second fall was as short as it was fast. Both grapplers seemed to be gathering speed for a finish bout until Gorman fell into a jack-knife and body pin and it was all over. Neither had put on any holds with effect in this brief setto, which required four minutes, until Breedlove grabbed his winning shoulder-pinner. Thus fell Gorman, who offered to make Breedlove's weight—138 pounds—and defeat him in a winner-take-all match with a substantial side bet. Whatever the share of the two grapplers, Breedlove is now that much richer, for Gilman announced all spoils would go to the victor.

Semi-Final Goes Limit.

Where the main bout was fast and soon ended, the semi-final went the 45 minutes allotted it and ended with the two grapplers still on their feet and making faces, refusing to shake hands and otherwise registering displeasure. Nor was this the first time the Ohio mat villain and the Canadian Hardrock gesticulated vehemently. On more than one occasion LaRue rewarded Myers with a miniature shower bath in retaliation for having the Myers thumb twiddled at him from the Myers nose.

After rolling around the ring, making faces, stepping on feet and threatening destruction one to another, Myers fell victim to the Hardrock in the opening fall in 21 minutes. LaRue introduced the alligator clutch to Paris mat fans to win this fall. In case you have never seen this hold, is is applied by stepping firmly into the opponent's back while he is face down on the mat, then seizing both arms and marching forward with them. Very unpleasant. Ask Mr. Myers.

Myers Gets Second.

But the doughty Myers was not to be outdone. He won the second fall. And what a fall! When Myers climbed a strand of the ropes in a neutral corner, LaRue climbed through the ropes and started around the ring after him—in a 'through the back door' fashion. And a few minutes later LeRue almost strangled (?) Myers by hanging his head over the ropes and then applying a headlock. But through it all the Toledo face maker came back strong enough to wool LaRue around the ring with a series of flying and reverse headlocks and then fell on the Canadian to win with a body spread in 14 minutes.

Five minutes later they were still hard at it, with Myers coming out of a leg split to apply a toe hold just before the final whistle. It took Referee Jim Frazier an additional minute to untangle the mass of arms and legs, with the result the boys went over the limit.

Baker Scores Knockout.

Battling Baker, welterweight champion of Lamar county, added another to his string of victories with a one minute knockout of Flash Whitten, 144 pounder from Howland. Whitten went down under a barrage of rights to the head, taking the count with his arms draped neatly about his head in pillow fashion.

Promoter Gilman announced prior to the second fall of the main bout the card for next week would feature Lee Myers and Otis Clingman in the main bout with Walter Stratton and Tsuato Higami in the semi-final. Two boxing bouts will support this card, he announced.

MISSING PASTOR IS WITH PARENTS

Rev. Johnnie Lovell of Abilene Reaches Home of Father Tuesday

SHERMAN, Tex., March 8 —Parents of Rev. J. A. Lovell, Abilene pastor, were firm in their conviction that their son's departure from Abilene Saturday was not of his own volition. They expressed the belief some one forced the evangelist to drive the 1,500 miles which they said his automobile speedometer registered after he left Abilene.

Fuqua Lovell, the father, stated that "Johnny said his mind was perfectly clear and had been clear all along but it would be impossible for him to tell what terrible thing had happened to him." discussion of the matter caused the youth to become frightened, his parents said, and they expressed the belief he was threatened seriously.

The Rev. Johnny Lovell, young Baptist pastor missing from Abilene since Saturday was safe at his father's home at Tom Bean in Grayson county Tuesday noon, after suddenly leaving the home of S. D. Chism of Powderly, where he spent Monday night. Apparently exhausted and talking mysteriously of 'remarkable experiences" he had encountered, Lovell arrived in his car about noon Monday at the Chism home, where he often visits, leaving the house only to go to the Powderly railroad station and send a message to his assistant at Abilene giving assurance of safety.

Missing him by only a few hours, L. W. Smith and George Antilley of Abilene, who said they were members of Lovell's congregation, arrived overland Tuesday to make inquiry at the Paris News office. Learning that Lovell had left Powderly, they said they were sure he was "headed home" and that they would return immediately to Abilene.

Lovell, a graduate of Simmons' university at Abilene and pastor of the Trinity Baptist church there had suffered a nervous breakdown shortly before Christmas, his friends say, and apparently his mysterious disappearance from Abilene was the result of a recurrence of the strain and worry over his work. He had been preaching daily for some time over the Abilene radio station, in addition to his pastoral duties and post-graduate work at the university.

E. Allen. Plate favors were miniature colonial corsage bouquets. The club adjourned to meet March 19 with Mrs. E. M. Bowers.

PARIS PLAYERS GIVEN VERDICT IN COMPETITION

College Group Wins Right To Compete In State Tournament

First place by unanimous vote of the judges was awarded the Collegiate Players of Paris Junior college Tuesday evening at Texarkana in the district play tournament, Texarkana junior college being the only other contestant. Three judges from Foreman, Ark., scored the presentations.

This makes the Paris players, directed by Miss Hope Ridings, eligible to the state contest on Friday at Hillsboro.

The Collegiate Players' vehicle was Ann Vincent's "The Mills of the Gods" and the cast included Misses Madolyn Crawford, Nellie Anderson, and Virginia Alexander; Irwin McClanahan, Roy Dunagan, Marshall McKinney and Dick DeBerry.

The play was presented here on Saturday evening at an informal "critics' night" gathering, a select group of Paris people, versed in dramatics being invited, and it was also given at the junior college chapel hour Monday morning.

The group, accompanied by Miss Ridings and her mother, Mrs. A. L. Ridings of Sherman, is expected home about noon Wednesday.

KIDNAPING

was attributed in part to information the Associated Press obtained Monday saying two notes from the abductors were received by the parents Sunday.

Nothing could be learned of what progress, if any, had been made by "Salvy" Sptiale and Irving Bitz, underworld characters designated as the Lindberghs "go-betweens."

It was clearer than ever before that the Lindberghs were desirous of dealing directly with the kidnapers on the basis of their public pleas, promising confidence in and safety for representatives of the kidnapers.

Rift With Police Denied

In two press conferences police denied flatly there was any rift between the authorities and Col. Lindbergh.

While Henry (Red) Johnson, sailor suitor of the Lindbergh baby's nurse, was ending a fourth day in custody, state police announced he would be detained until that phase of the inquiry had been completed.

"By that we mean investigation of his statements," reporters were told.

This included the comparison of Johnson's statements with those of John Fernado, who said Johnson gave him a ride from New York to Connecticut.

Two men who thought they could help solve the kidnapping mystery were detained all day at police headquarters in Boston and then released. They were taken into custody while making a telephone call to the Lindbergh home.

Contractor Held

A woman's story she had overheard a conversation between Tony Meslo, a contractor, and two men 10 months ago in which the Lindbergh baby was mentioned resulted in detention of Meslo under $25,000 Bond in New Haven, Conn.

In making an offer of $50,000 for return of the kidnapped child, Walter Lafferty, New York attorney, said he would contribute "legal defense to the last ditch" to anyone who should help him recover the boy.

He said he thought the return of the child could best be effected without the aid of the police. He received one phone call after he had made public his offer, but he said it was from a "crank."

Lafferty was a colleague in the house of representatives of the late Charles A. Lindbergh, grandfather of the child.

Paris Hi Debate Team Victorious

The Paris high school debating team defeated the Cooper high school team at the high school auditorium Tuesday night. The Cooper team had previously defeated the Paris boys last week, when they visited Cooper.

Judges Tuesday night were Dr. F. L. Wear of the Central Presbyterian church, Mrs. J. L. George of the junior college faculty and Prof. W. H. Freeman, also of Paris junior college.

J. H. Newton, dean of the college was chairman at the meeting.

CROP LOAN AGENT GETS ASSISTANT

E. O. Hicks Will Assist Wayne Anderson in Negotiations

E. O. Hicks of Paris, formerly with the Santa Fe railway, has been employed by the Lamar county chamber of commerce to assist Wayne Anderson, field agent in the matter of perfecting applications for crop loans from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

It was pointed out the work of filling out blanks, notes, waivers and other documents necessary for securing the loans would be facilitated if someone were in the office at all times. This work was done last year by Miss Betty White and Mrs. Jewel Clifford, assisting Frank Yearwood.

Mr. Hicks is employed by the chamber of commerce in order that farmers negotiating loans may be given all possible assistance. Mr. Anderson is in the office only on Tuesday of each week.

Although only three applications were finished Tuesday, there were about ten who called for information in regard to the matter.

the most of it by sending people postcards from the different countries he visits.

The King is well-dressed and would pass muster in any crowd. He says he never pays for anything unless he has to. The admission that he is a hobo and does not expect to pay for anything usually gets him by.

Although he is only twenty-two, Al has already seen more of the world than the majority of people see in a lifetime. His travels have taken him to Panama, Africa and practically every part of the globe. He tells (pardon, writes) some stirring tales of rescuing fair maidens from half-breeds and of witnessing gruesome sights. And far be it from us to question his veracity. Our traveling has been confined to America and we can not vouch for tales of other continents.

When interviewed Al looked as he was ready for his morning canter through the park, dressed in black riding boots and tan breeches. All in all, Al is a pretty good hobo and a gentleman.

BETTER TOBACCO WILL TELL

Lipstick Girl

A Romance of a Little Beauty

By EDNA ROBB WEBSTER

Author of "DAD'S GIRL," "JORETTA" and "LOVE PREFERRED"

RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION, INC.

CHAPTER 60

When the girls were preparing to go to lunch that day, Kitty observed suddenly, as if she had just noticed Maricia's ring. "Hello, another Morley diamond! That Romeo must own half the Kimberly mines!"

Marcia glanced up naively. "Do the Morleys own diamond mines, too?"

"'Twould be cheaper for the old man if they did. When you count the girls right here in the store that he's given a diamond, to say nothing of the others—oh, la! it would add up to a fortune!"

All the gay joyousness faded from Marcia's face. "I don't understand—"

Kitty laughed. "You would if you lived in Huntville and knew Dana Morley. Why! Viva Eckland was expecting a ring any day—until you came on the scene and spoiled her act. But then, she'll probably get hers after you've left town—" she continued flippantly, not noticing Marcia's gray pallor.

"Oh, no," Marcia assured her earnestly, "this is serious, Kitty. Did you know that Dana really has a great talent and is going to be famous some day in his own right?"

"Oh, yeah? With you for his inspiration, I suppose? That's the song he sang to me—let me see—it must be about three years now since I heard those words from Dana Morley. They are almost an echo now—a multiple echo that goes on through the years as Dana goes on his selfish, extravagant way," her voice was bitter with recalled suffering. She was another girl who had dreamed of being the revered, admired and envied wife of Dana Morley.

Her tone softened at the stricken look on Marcia's face, and continued, "Take it from me, my dear, and don't let him hurt you. He's not worth it. I should have told you that, when you first met him."

Marcia turned away abruptly to conceal the tears that would not be suppressed. The world had become a drab, dull, aching void and the two-karat stone on her finger a tremendous weight.

She was pathetically lovely as she went down to the hotel lobby to meet Dana that night. He came toward her eagerly, took both her hands and poured admiration from his eyes. But she turned away quickly and led the way to a secluded divan and sat down rigidly on its edge.

His eyes questioned her. "Shall we go? We'll be late for the show darling."

"We're not going to the show, tonight—or any night, Dana. At least not together. You may take any of your other girls you wish."

Then he noticed that she was not wearing his ring. "Why, Marcia, what's wrong?"

"Nothing much. I've just learned that becoming engaged is an every day experience with you. But I am not collecting diamond rings for curios," and she coolly held out the ring to him.

"But, dearest—has Kitty been talking?" He tried to laugh but his voice sounded hollow. "The joke's on Kitty, after all. Because I've found the one and only girl for me," and he tried to take her hand to replace the ring.

She drew away quietly. "No, Dana, I'm sorry; but I can see now that I don't believe I love you either, in the way I thought. You just swept me off my feet, out of reason," she said softly, slowly. "We didn't know each other, at all. We have lived under such entirely different conditions, and I thought it was your kind of life I wanted to live. But I don't, after all. Not if it means the danger of playing with the greatest emotions of life, of tarnishing love with cheap affairs and gambling with the happiness of others."

"But you don't understand. I'm not playing with your affections. You are just upset over something you've heard about me. I'll grant that it could be plenty—and I'm sorry. Please forgive me," he implored. "But don't say you don't love me. I know you are not the kind of a girl to give a promise one day and break it the next."

"No, it isn't like me; but I must do it this time. It is you who must try to forgive me. I was homesick—yes, homesick, and didn't know it. . . . I thought . . . I was seeking a great adventure, when all the time it is home I have been dreaming about."

She gazed out the window into the twinkling-lighted night—silent, thoughtful, frightened at the step she had been about to take, blinded, dazzlined. It was as if she had been groping about in dense darkness and someone had suddenly struck a match—a light that beckoned her toward the way she had been seeking. The light was a tiny flame and seemed very far ahead—but she faced about toward it with new courage.

Dana, too, was silent, baffled.

She touched his hand. "I'm sorry, Dana, that I encouraged you. But I know now that I never can marry you, in fairness to either of us."

"Your are not fair," he said at last. "I can't help it now that I've been an awful fool, can I? I—he stopped suddenly, as one who has waded into deep water as far as he can go, looks back to shore, realizes that he has already gone too far for safety, the tide is rising.

"No, Dana, if I loved you as I thought I did, the past would make little difference to me. It has taken just this to show me that I don't love you enough—this prick of disillusion to burst the bubble of my rainbow dreams. I like you, you've been wonderful to me. But you only fascinated me. And I couldn't marry you now if I were the first girl you had ever known."

He finally left her with regret, even hoping that she might yet relent. He had jilted a lot of girls like this—but this was different. He was being jilted. Had it meant so much to each of them?

Marcia spent most of the night packing her trunk and writing a letter of explanation to Percy DuMott, asking him to grant her a short vacation and to find a new girl to take up her work as soon as possible. She had decided that she would resign within a few months, anyway. She would carry on for a while if he wished her to, after she had had a week at home; but she wanted to forget his plans for her future even while she appreciated his interest immensely.

The trip to Mitchelfield seemed interminable to Marcia. It afforded her many hours of meditation. She was like a part of a river that leaves the main stream and takes its own course for a distance, to return again to the main current. Many little phrases of homely wisdom flashed through her mind, like "the sweetest dreams take longest to come true" and "friends who make salt sweet and blackness bright." She was thinking of Ted.

Ted was sprawled beneath a disreputable car, his face smeared with grease, his hands reeking oil and dirt, his overalls shining with all three, when the boy called him to the telephone.

"Yeah, hullo," he called into the transmitter, colorlessly.

When Maria's "Ted, I'm home again," sounded in his ear, his face shone as brilliantly as the moon could with a cloud over it. He shouted, "When? Where are you? When can I see you?"

"I'm at the store."

"What? At the store? What for?"

"Just came up for awhile."

"What's the matter? That guy didn't can you, did he?" fiercely.

"No—but I'm going to resign soon. Will I see you tonight?"

"Try to keep me away! How about drivin' out to Paradise Inn for a chicken dinner, to celebrate, just you and I?"

"All around the world and back to Paradise Inn?" she chuckled.

"Why not?"

"Okay, Ted!"

"So long, then."

When he arrived that evening, he was transformed almost beyond any resemblance to the mechanic who had answered the telephone. And the light in his eyes, when they rested on Marcia, equally transformed his plain, boyish face.

"Gee! honey, but you look swell to me. My memory must be gettin' poor, or you have grown more beautiful. Did you come home because you got my letter?" he beamed, but was instantly disappointed when she asked:

"What letter?"

"Hasn't she heard the big news?" he asked Mrs. Moyer.

"No, Ted. I thought you would want to tell her, anyway, and we have had so much to say today."

"What is it, Ted?" Marcia asked eagerly. "Are you going into business for yourself?"

"Oh, better than that, honey. Let's go, I'll tell you on the way."

She settled herself beside him in the rakish little car—which was little more than a rattle-box—with an air of belonging. "It's nice to be in your little car again," her soft voice trembled with excitement.

"Oh, gosh, honey, if you had waited another week I would have had my new car. But I'm glad I don't have to wait another week to see you," he amended the regret over not having the shining new coupe he had ordered, to honor Marcia's return.

"A new car? Oh, Ted, you sound so mysterious and—and—tell me all about it, quickly."

"I will," he promised "But what about you? You say you are going to resign. What for Marcia? Thought you had a swell job?" His voice was anxious, puzzled, even hopeful.

"I have, Ted. Nothing wrong with the work—oh, tiresome as any work, for that matter." Her glance was shy, adoring, quiet. They were speeding over the highway under the same star-spangled sky which had draped itself over Huntville only a few nights ago.

"Then, what'd you quit for?" he persisted.

"I got homesick," she confessed softly.

He started eagerly, leaned toward her, slackened his speed. "But you wanted to see the world, honey. Didn't you like it—the traveling, and always seeing new places and people? I thought that was what you wanted—to see the world."

"I did too, Ted," she replied, and her voice was so low that he had to bend nearer to hear, "but, Ted, darling—you see—'the world' is here!"

38 GALLONS OF WHISKEY, AUTO, SEIZED IN RAID

One Arrested as County Officers Trap Booze Runner Near River

Confiscation of 38 gallons of whiskey and the seizure of a light coupe early Tuesday afternoon at Arthur City grew out of an ambush laid that morning by county officers acting on information received here.

One Arrested

The sole occupant of the whisky-laden automobile, who gave his name as R. W. Kelly of Commerce, waived examining trial before Justice of Peace A. W. Sheffield on charges of transporting liquor. He was remanded to jail in default of $700 bond.

The arrest was made by Deputy Sheriff Arthur Payne, Constable J. W. T. Biard and his deputies, John Pride and Walter Hargrove, immediately after the light coupe crossed the Red river bridge. The automobile contained two 10-gallon kegs and three cases of whisky, according to the reports of officers.

$65.50 for Whisky

In a statement made to County Attorney John T. Hutchison, Kelly said that he paid $65.50 for the whisky in Oklahoma, that he was hauling the whisky for another man in Commerce, that he had never been arrested before. He stated further he made the trip to buy groceries for his wife and self since he had been out of steady employment for the past two years.

Immediately after their return from Arthur City, Deputy Sheriff Arthur Payne and Deputy Constable John Pride arrested J. W. Francis at a filling station on the old Greenville road on charges of possessing liquor for sale. Francis immediately waived examining trial before Justice of Peace Charles Parrott and was released on $500 bond.

Former Raid

Charges filed Monday against Francis grew out of the arrest of his father, Will Francis, on February 4 when Bob Goss, Texas ranger, and Deputy Sheriff Payne confiscated about two gallons of whisky in a raid at his filling station. Young Francis was at the station at the time of the raid.

LOVED TO EAT, AND NOW SHE CAN!

Much of the suffering from so-called "indigestion" or acid-dyspepsia could be avoided if everyone could know what thousands like Miss Lillian Ralston have learned. This New York City business woman, who lives at 1160 Park Avenue, says:

"I suffered from headaches and heartburn after meals; couldn't sleep like I should; never felt right.

"For five years I experimented with medicines and treatments, until I learned about Pape's Diapepsin. I have used three packages now; have gained five pounds, and feel fine."

If you, too, suffer from sourness, gas, belching, nausea, headaches, dizziness, or pain after eating—either regularly or just at times, get a box of Pape's Diapepsin from your druggist. Then you need never worry again about what you eat.

Nek Orleans Cotton

NEW ORLEANS, March 8 (AP)—Each upturn in cotton Tuesday found hedging orders coming into play, and as a result the market failed to get very far in either direction. The opening was firm and higher, but soon after prices started a steady downward trend to move nearly half dollar a bale under the opening figures. Around midday, higher stocks encouraged trade buying, but the rise only tended to increase hedging. The close was irregular, March closing 3 points net up to 6.93 while May was down 3 points at 7.03. July down at 7.19 and Oct. down 4 at 7.37.

New York Cotton

NEW YORK, March 8 (AP)—The rapid advance in sterling exchange and fluctuations in differences between the New York and Liverpool markets were reflected by irregularity in cotton Tuesday particularly during early trading.

May after selling off from 7.07 to 7.00, advanced to 7.09 on trade buying and covering promoted by the better tone in the stock market, but eased again in late trading under renewed realizing and liquidation or local selling. May closed at 7.02 with the general market barely closing at net declines of 2-4 points.

The attention of the trade seemed to focus on the develonments in sterling and the adjustment of differences between Liverpool and New York through the medium of arbitrage operations. Liverpool cables said the market there had been influenced by heavy general selling on the advance in sterling but reported a fair demand for cotton cloth from India and China.

New York Stocks

NEW YORK, March 8 (AP)—Although the runaway market for British pounds was Tuesday's most striking development, securities contributed to a general measure of financial improvement.

Bonds were especially liberal with their advances; large buying came out for U. S. governments and Germans, while gilt edge domestics rallied confidently. Stocks, after an indifferent start, plugged ahead most of the day, but met enough late selling to hold down net gains to rather moderate proportions.

Several influences, aside from professional stock traders who feel that the easiest current course is upward, were to be noted in the day's news. Further steps at Washington toward reducing government expenditures and the prospects of a balanced budget effected through higher taxes doubtless buoyed spirits that were quite steady for a stimulant. In addition, there was word of the material aid already given by the reconstruction finance corporation which so far has made loans totaling $183,000,000.

Chicago Grain

CHICAGO, March 8 (AP) — Sensational flights of the British pound sterling, accompained by enlarged purchases of North American breadstuffs for shipment overseas, put new backbone into wheat values Tuesday.

Exporters were estimated to have bought 700,000 bushels of wheat and 500,000 bushels of rye from Canada and the United States. Persistent severe cold and complaints of insufficient snow protection for domestic winter wheat, were a contributing bullish factor.

Wheat closed unsettled at almost the day's top 3-8 3-4 above Monday's Finish, Corn1-8 1-4 Advanced, Oats 1-4 3-8 up, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 7 cents.

Closing indemnities: Wheat May 60 7-8 61, 62-62 1-8; July 62 3-4 7-8, 63 7-8; Sept 64 3-4, 65 3-4. Corn May 39 7-8, 40 1-2; July 42 3-8, 42 7-8.

Charges Filed Against Couple

Charges of driving an automobile while intoxicated Tuesday afternoon were filed against Eva Naake, 79 East Austin street, after the automobile which she was driving careened over a bridge on Highway 49 at Deport, injuring her and her husband. Charges of drunkenness were filed against her husband, Charlie Naake, the only other occupant of the car.

After waiving examining trial before Justice of Peace Charles Parrott, Mrs. Naake was expected to be released on $400 bond.

The woman was treated at the Deport hospital for a broken nose injured hand, cut lips and chin. Her husband was treated for a cut knee, scalp injury and injured hand. The light coach was badly damaged.

The couple was brought to Paris by L. L. Pierce, Deport city marshal and Jesse Kilgore who handed them over to county authorities. Pierce said he found Mr. and Mrs. Naake at the Deport hospital.

Mrs. Naake said they were en route to the East Texas oil field when the accident occurred. She said the automobile careened over the bridge railing and into the ditch after she turned a sharp curve.

And spoiled the no-hit game I'm pitchin'?
What put you off?
Oh, yeah . . . a cough?
Yuh couldn't stop yer throat from twitchin'?

Them fags yuh smoke
Would make you choke.
Well, listen to what I'm remarkin'—
You just arrange
